

Impact of Industrialization

Casey Curtis, period 2

Social effects

- The average life span of a person increased
- Better transportation
- Many diseases broke out due to bad working and living conditions
- Child labor and abuse
- Population boom led to high unemployment rates and not enough living space
- Lack of education for the children, they were all forced to work

Political effects

- The middle class grew in power
- Aristocrats didn't have control over everyone
- Working class gained rights and laws were made against extended working hours and child labor

Economic effects

- More money was made through investing, inventing, selling and producing
- Production rates increased
- Rapid increase of technology
- Lower transportation costs
- Better and cheaper good production
- Trade increase

